Disability Rights Law and Policy: International and National Perspectives Silvia Yee, Mary Lou Breslin

This volume describes the extraordinary success of the international political movement of people with disabilities to include disability as a human rights issue. The authors are renowned disability rights attorneys, university professors, and activists who practice, teach and work internationally.

The collection begins with a survey of international, comparative and regional disability law reforms. It sets the stage for the Principles, an exploration of theoretical problems and issues that must be addressed if disability legislation is to have the desired impact. Topics include the challenge of defining disability; the role of prejudice in conceptualizing rights-based laws; theories of equality as they relate to disability; the dissonance between social welfare and civil rights approaches to disability; and the use of international human rights and other laws to challenge institutionalization and advance community integration.

The collection concludes with works related to practice, "nuts and bolts" strategies that activists used to achieve passage of the landmark 1990 Americans with Disabilities Act, and a report of the ADA's practical impact on the lives of people with disabilities.

The editors are all associated with the Disability Rights Education and Defense Fund, a national law and policy center dedicated to protecting and advancing the civil rights of people with disabilities through legislation, litigation, advocacy, technical assistance, and education and training of attorneys, advocates, persons with disabilities, and parents of children with disabilities.
